"To dally much with subjects mean and low Proves that the mind is weak, or makes it so."
Climb then the news, and leap from peak to peak,
And thus we'll prove our minds are not antique.

Special dispatch from London does not report that the Prince of Wales broke his wishbone. Here's the Mt. Everest of today's news.

Hotel waiters invite President
Coolidge to their ball and tell him not to dress up, because if he dressed up, you see, nobody'd know the President was there—they'd think he was a waiter.

The fate of Col. Billy Mitchell, as Secretary Davis hands him his head on a silver charger, will serve to remind officers of the army who are dependent on their pay for the support of themselves and their families to keep their mouths shut though they might know the foundations of the Republic to be crumbling.

Here's a subject high enough to please even William Cowper—
Lieut. Macready reaches an altitude of 35,900 feet, but fails to break the world's record. "Too low they build who build beneath the stars"! It was back in 1783 that Louis XVIII claimed the supremacy of the air for the French, and they still hold it.

Gen. Billy Mitchell isn't the only person to talk himself out of a good job—Judge Wallace McCamant declares that Theodore Roosevelt was not a good American, to a committee of Republicans at the Senate, where that sentiment isn't as popular as it was in 1912. Andrew Johnson still remains in the outer darkness, but the Bad Boy who tried to break up the G. O. P. is now its Patron Saint.

They say that the numeral 7 is the sure 'nuff lucky number, but how come when a boy of 14, which is twice 7, receives 21 years, which is 3 times 7, for killing 3, which is one-seventh of 21?

What's the use of Cousin Tom Blanton going to all the trouble of establishing a new government for Lieut. Min Van Winkle and the people of the District when with Tom in Congress we don't need any?

Gaping crowds stand around and view a mighty rare spectacle, Niagara Falls as dry as a bootlegger who knows where he got his own alkie, but who is going to claim the credit for this, Volstead or Wayne
B. Wheeler?

Shocking tragedy at the Treasury Department plunges official Washington into the depths of gloom—Rudolph Valentino pays a visit without being recognized by a single flapper clerk—or a married one either. Such is life!

Speaking of tragedies, an inexplicable accident occurs at Rome, where students staging an antiforeign demonstration forget to bawl out the United States.

Since the anthracite miners work only a fraction of a year at best, they can quickly recoup their temporary wage losses during the Spring and Summer, so that as the union is strengthening itself in the non-union bituminous fields, and the operators are selling their stocks at top prices, it's no wonder that John L. Lewis and the barons can't decide on a better way to terminate the strike than the one they've got.

Let us hope that the families of the two men of the crew of the President Roosevelt who lost their lives in the Antioch rescue will not have cause to moralize upon the ingratitude of republics.

Washington woman with a water pistol when confronted by a bill collector makes a scientific discovery of inestimable value to the human race, but will this work with propagandists and reformers?

Perhaps Judge McCamant with his memory jogged will also recall that T. R. once said something about folks who were "fossilized of mind."

Sixty-three miners are trapped in an Alabama mine, and the death list may reach 38, so it isn't always

The slow progress of the tax bill through the Senate furnishes a timely tip to the rule reformers on how to popularize cloture.

2 BIG SENATE BLOCS ORGANIZE TO FIGHT OVER ESTATE TAXES

Coalitions for or Against Repeal Are Breaking Party Lines.

NORRIS SEEKS BACKING TO PREVENT CLOTURE

Reed, Pennsylvania, Opposes Insurance Levy; Normal Tax Reductions Approved.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

A real fight looms in the Senate over the tax bill, with the estate tax repeal as the chief issue. The coalition administration-Democratic forces which are seeking to drive the bill through by February 10 so that the taxpayers may have the benefit of the new sweeping reductions when they make their next returns are now opposed by a Republican-Democratic bloc of independent Senators led by Senator Norris and King.

Debate yesterday dragged on the floor with only a handful of senators present. But the opposition to the estate tax repeal was being further organized outside the chamber, with new recruits coming in and increasing indications that the battle will be more protracted and more determined than anticipated. If the opposition can muster more than a third of a vote in the Senate, it will be a safeguard against threatened cloture, which is already being discussed in the cloakrooms. The estate tax, or "death tax," as it is called by those senators who favor its repeal, is deprecated by Senators Smoot, Simmons and their supporters on the ground that the Federal government should leave the collection of this tax to the States. A man should not have to pay money to the government to die, it is added.

Heavy on Large Estates.
On the other hand, the opponents to repeal of this tax say it is the least burdensome tax ever devised. It falls only upon the very rich. It is added, as estates up to $50,000 pay nothing under the present law and estates of $100,000 pay only $500. Large estates in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 pay something like $400,000 based on the present maximum 40 per cent rate. The House proposed to cut the rate to 20 per cent. The Senate bill proposes to abandon this tax altogether.

It is further contended by the opposition that the government will lose at least $100,000,000 a year in revenue through the repeal of this tax and the amount in the near future will be $135,000,000 a year, it is added.

If the Federal government repeals the estate tax, it is contended further by Senator Norris and his followers, the States will have difficulty in retaining this tax. Florida and other States, wishing to become havens for the wealthy, have abandoned this tax, it is pointed out, and other States in self-defense will have to follow suit. Senator Simmons denies the logic of this contention.

Duke Estate Discussed.

Claimant of $1,000,000 Dies With Prize Near Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—William Pitt Shattuck, 65, originator of a score of inventions, died today. His death occurred while the British war office had under consideration his claim to more than $1,000,000 offered to the persons originating principles on which the tank operated.

A letter received from the British embassy at Washington just a few hours before his death intimated that his claim was looked upon with favor.

Mexico Slays Rebel, Deported From U. S.

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—Dispatches received here from Mexico City say the Secretary of War has been informed that Demetrio Torres, alias Chaparreras, prominent revolutionist, was executed at Torreon.

The Mexico City dispatches said he was taken at the American frontier after being deported from the United States, "summarily tried" on charges of holding up trains between Nuevo Laredo and Monterrey and executed.

JUDGE SAYS ROOSEVELT WAS NOT GOOD AMERICAN

McCament, Defending Own Fitness for Office, Objects to Recall Advocacy.

DENOUNCED BY JOHNSON

(By the Associated Press.)

The Americanism of Theodore Roosevelt was brought into question yesterday before the Senate judiciary committee by Wallace McCament, of Oregon, whose nomination as a Federal circuit judge is under fire.

Judge McCament, who is serving on the bench in the Ninth circuit under a recess appointment by President Coolidge, declared Roosevelt was not "a good American," because as the Bull Moose candidate for President in 1912 he had advocated "the recall of judicial decisions."

This declaration aroused the ire of Senator Johnson, of California, running mate with Roosevelt, and who is opposing Judge McCament's confirmation, on the ground that he violated a pledge to the voters of Oregon to support for the Republican presidential nomination in 1920 the candidate who won out in the Oregon primaries.

Declaring that any man who held such views regarding Roosevelt was "unfit" to sit on the bench of the highest American court save the Supreme Court, Senator Johnson said: "If any man who says Theodore Roosevelt was not a good American"

COLD WAVE Waning; ANOTHER IS ON WAY

Warmer Weather for City Until Monday; Six Die in Northeastern Area.

The biting cold of the past two days will give way to "fairly pleasant" weather today, according to Forecaster Weightman.

The mercury dropped to 6.8 degrees yesterday morning, the lowest mark of the winter. Today, according to the forecaster, it will ascend to 35 or 40 degrees.

Rain is probable tonight or tomorrow, according to the forecaster. The comparatively warm temperature will last until Monday, he said, when another cold spell will visit the city.

New York, Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—The cold and the snow that accompanied the gale in parts of New York State and New England resulted in six deaths, two in New York, one in Meriden, Conn., two in Providence, R. I., and one in Hanover, N. H.

Considerable property damage was caused by the gale which smashed plate glass windows and fanned fires in several cities, which drove hundreds of persons into the streets, where temperatures hovered around zero.

Hughes' Plea for Oil Inquiry Delay Denied

(By the Associated Press.)

A request by Charles E. Hughes, as representative of the American Petroleum Institute, that the public hearings on the petroleum industry scheduled by the Federal oil conservation board for February 10 and 11 be postponed until March, has been denied by Secretary Work, chairman of the board.

Mr. Hughes had declared that adequate preparation for the hearings, if held next month, would be "difficult, if not impossible," and that he was under engagement to argue cases on these dates in Cincinnati.

MACREADY, 35,900 FEET UP, SETS U. S. ALTITUDE RECORD

Failure of Supercharger Prevents Smashing of World Figure.

80 BELOW ZERO, BUT FLIER IS KEPT WARM

New Devices Proved Sound in Principle, He Says; Plans New Flight.

Dayton, Ohio, Jan. 29 (By A. P.).

Although Lieut. John A. Macready, McCook field flier, was unsuccessful today in his attempt to set a new world's altitude record, he did establish an American record, and in addition proved the soundness of several advanced engineering principles incorporated in his special plane.

Unofficial reading of the plane's barograph showed he went to a height of 35,900 feet. His goal was 40,000 feet or more, necessary to eclipse the mark of Callise, French aviator, who has ascended to 39,596.47 feet, the present world's record. The former record set by Macready was 35,239 feet.

The barograph was calibrated at McCook field under Federation Aeronautic Internationale computations. The official reading will be made by the bureau of standards at Washington, from another barograph which was sealed as soon as the plane landed.

Supercharger Deficient.

The supercharger on the motor of Macready's special CZO-5 plane failed to function after 25,000 feet, when it should have delivered sea level pressure to the motor at 33,000 feet. This, as far as engineers at the field have been able to determine, was the only reason for the failure of the flight. Otherwise, the plane functioned perfectly. Technicians have not found out why the supercharger did not deliver its theoretical pressure.

Macready felt no ill effects from the flight. His oxygen supply worked perfectly in the rarified strata of air, and the swappings of clothes which he had donned kept him warm. In addition, a flexible tube had been run back from the motor's exhaust and this provided a heater in the plane's cockpit.

Plans were started immediately to prepare the plane for another flight. They will be rushed, for Macready is leaving the field in March.

New Devices Sound.

The plane was designed and constructed at McCook field. Several new principles were incorporated in it, including an adjustable propeller and special wing construction. Today's flight, Macready said, proved the soundness of all principles and demonstrated that they can be applied to other planes.

Macready encountered a temperature today of 62½ degrees below zero centigrade, which is approximately 80 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. The ship's clock froze at an altitude of 30,000 feet and did not thaw out until the flier was well on the descent.

Could Obtain Pictures.

Among other things, the flight, Macready said, demonstrated conclusively that pictures may be made from such great altitudes. He estimated that at his "ceiling" photographs showing 19 square miles of terrain could have been obtained.

He was able to see Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Columbus and other cities in this section of the country, he said. He said the only way he could pick them out, however, was by the smudges of smoke from their industries. Later on, the plane will be used in photographic expeditions.

It took the flier an hour and a half to gain the ceiling, and the flight was completed in exactly 2 hours.

Women Convicted Of Holding Up Bank

Sioux Falls, S. Dak., Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—Mrs. Catherine Rogers and her 19-year-old daughter, Zera, confessed bank robbers, were found guilty by a circuit court jury late today of first degree robbery.

Sentence will be passed Tuesday. The women, who had confessed to robbing the Reuner State bank at Renner, near here last fall, sought to escape punishment on an insanity plea. They now face a sentence of from 1 to 20 years in the State penitentiary here.

Niagara Dry Due to Ice; Is First Time Since 1909

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—Thousands of persons today viewed a dry Niagara—one of nature's rarest spectacles. Only a few gallons of water trickled over the American falls because of the formation of an ice jam from Goat Island to the mainland at Port Day.

The jam commenced to form a week ago off Port Day, where the river is shallow and the ice moves slowly. High winds loosened ice farther up the river and in Lake Erie, aiding in forming the blockade. The gale Thursday, together with the zero temperature, completed the big dam. The water which usually slides over the American falls was diverted to the Canadian cataract.

Venturesome spectators were refused permission to walk across to Goat Island from the mainland. When the same phenomena occurred in 1909, a number of persons walked over the dry river bed.

CITY, 3,000 YEARS OLD, IS UNCOVERED IN PERU

Mummies, Jewelry and Fine Textile Remains Found by Dr. McGovern.

UNDER 30 FEET OF SAND

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Lima, Peru, Jan. 29.—The discovery of possibly the oldest known traces of civilization in Peru, dating back to 1,000 years before the Christian era, was announced today by Dr. William Montgomery McGovern, of London university, who, with Dr. Julio Tello, curator of the Peruvian Government Archaeological museum, has returned from an expedition to the peninsula of Paracas, 25 miles south of the port of Pisco.

The walls and courtyards lie under 18 to 20 feet of sand.

An ancient village church yard was found in which the dead were entombed in burial caverns shaped like flat bottomed water bottles, 16 feet in diameter at the bottom, and 10 feet high. Within each of the ten or fifteen burial caverns so far explored, from five to fifteen mummies have been found, arranged in sitting positions around the circular walls.

The burial caverns are rich in magnificent textile remains, although the pottery found therein was of an extremely primitive character.

Numerous finely worked gold head bands, small articles of jewelry and other objects of gold have been found.

Sheffield-Calles Talk Declared Significant

Mexico City, Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—Mexican-American relations have reached a new significant stage by reason of the personal conference between President Calles and James R. Sheffield, the American Ambassador, today. It is believed generally here. The conference lasted about an hour and a half, and the theory prevails that important developments will follow it.

Ambassador Sheffield seemed in excellent spirits after he left the palace, but smilingly parried the interviewers' questions, not giving the slightest indication as to the details and possible results of the conference.

Machias, Maine, Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—Two men and a child were killed and about twenty other persons were injured, six or seven seriously, when two cars of a passenger train bound from Calais to Boston late today were derailed as the train was crossing Cold Stream bridge on the Washington county branch of the Maine Central railroad, 2 miles west of Marlon.

Those killed were: W. J. Gould, of Calais; Clarence Strout, of Millbridge, and the 2-year-old child of Mrs. Sumner Harford, of Woodland.

Quakes Raze Houses; Bulgarians in Terror

Sofia, Bulgaria, Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—Two severe earth shocks took place a few minutes apart midnight this morning at Gornya-Orzechovica, near Tirnovo, the ancient capital of Bulgaria. Many houses were partly demolished, and the chimneys and walls fell everywhere.

The population was in a state of panic, fearing a repetition of the disaster of twelve years ago in the same area, so far as is known, no one was killed.

BLANTON CHARGES FENNING CENSORS HIS SUBORDINATES

Says Lieut. Van Winkle and Eldridge Are Kept Under Restraint.

DISTRICT SUFFRAGE GIVEN HIS SUPPORT

Makes Defense of 5-Cent Fare Bill on the Floor of House.

Charging that the District commissioners have placed Lieut. Min C. Van Winkle, of the women's bureau, and Traffic Director Eldridge Blanton, of Texas, declared in the House yesterday that he favored popular election of Washington's city officials.

The commissioners have adopted a rule, he declared, prohibiting Mrs. Van Winkle and Director Eldridge from talking to members of Congress. In the last few days, he said, he had been denied information which he sought from both of them, being told that he would have to see Commissioner Fenning.

Commissioner Fenning admitted yesterday morning, Mr. Blanton declared, that a muzzle had been placed on Mrs. Van Winkle and Mr. Eldridge, explaining, as Mr. Blanton quoted him, "We think you should come to the commissioners." Mr. Blanton would not disclose the nature of the information he was seeking from Mrs. Van Winkle, but declared he told Mr. Fenning that he would insist on getting his information directly from the department concerned.

Sought Data on Uniforms.

He wanted to talk with Mr. Eldridge concerning his bill to give the members of the police and fire departments their uniforms and equipment.

"We have a good woman down here in charge of the house of detention whom the newspapers are 'cussing' all the time," said Mr. Blanton, "and yet she is doing splendid work. That is Mrs. Min C. Van Winkle. One of the commissioners told me out of his own mouth that she had spent out of her own money $84,000 of her own money in building up that house of detention. That is how much she is interested in it. Yet she can not come to a man in Congress and a man in Congress can not go to her because the commissioner, have made a rule that we have to see them about Mrs. Van Winkle's office. I for one will vote to abolish the board of commissioners of this city and let the people of this city elect their own commissioners to protect the people here for whom we are responsible."

While it has been generally known that Mr. Eldridge's vocal

5, Marooned in Ice 3 Days, Reach Shore

Special to The Washington Post.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Five fishermen, who have been marooned in the ice a mile off shore in Lake Michigan since Wednesday, made their way to shore tonight after they had been supplied with food and fuel by two airplanes. The men had been without food for 31 hours and had burned everything except the fittings of their boats to keep from freezing. The men escaped after a strong wind had blown them closer to shore. A large crowd watched as they made their way to safety over the treacherous ice.

Rome Chamber Votes To Strengthen Army

Rome, Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—After Premier Mussolini had made a speech in which he declared that the armed forces of the nation must be maintained with the highest efficiency and that Italy wanted peace, but that peace would be more secure if backed by the sword, the chamber of deputies tonight adopted the clauses of the bill for reorganization of the army.

The premier announced that 76 regiments are to be stationed in the chief cities of the provinces, "regardless of prayers in the cathedrals and processions in the streets, all of which will be useless."

He said also that eleven extra regiments are to be stationed "at fitting places."

POISON KILLS 5 IN HOME; MURDER THEORY IS HELD

Members of Family Die After Party; Two Ill; Guests Not Affected.

WINE IS BEING ANALYZED

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—Five members of the family of Arthur Fulvi, 33, including the father and four children, the victims of poison, were found dead in their home here late today after a party last night. Two other members of the family, the mother, and Gino Fulvi, 4, were taken to hospitals in a serious condition.

The dead are Arthur Fulvi, James Fulvi, 14; Rudy Fulvi, 10; Dorothy Fulvi, 6; Mary Fulvi, 8. A quantity of wine found on a table was held for analysis. The sick and the dead drank of the wine. After the meal had been served, Victor Fulvi, 13, went to the home of his grandmother with whom he lived, without partaking of the wine, and he suffered no ill effects.

Police tonight leaned toward the murder theory because none of eight guests at the party suffered any consequences, although all consumed considerable food, beer and wine.

Examination of Arthur's stomach also revealed traces of a liquid poison, hospital physicians declared, but no trace of this poison was found in the mother's organ. There also were burns around the child's mouth.

MRS. LANGLEY LOSES HOUSE NOMINATION

G. O. P. Names A. J. Kirk to Succeed Kentuckian, Now in Prison.

Pikeville, Ky., Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—A. J. Kirk, of Paintsville, won the right to contest for the seat formerly occupied by John W. Langley in the House of Representatives at Washington, when the Republican congressional district convention in session here nominated him on the 62d ballot.

His runner-up was Mrs. John W. Langley, wife of the former representative, who is serving a two-year sentence in Atlanta penitentiary for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

Before entering prison Langley urged the election of his wife to succeed him.

Kirk's Democratic opponent is J. C. Cantrell, Pikeville attorney, who was nominated a week ago at Hazard.

Magistrate Arrested; Had 150-Gallon Still

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—James H. Bristow, magistrate, was arrested here today by Federal and county officers on a charge of operating a distilling outfit in his home. Officers reported seizing a 150-gallon copper still with 3,000 gallons of beer, 120 gallons of corn whisky and other materials for manufacturing whisky.

Boy, 14, Who Killed 3, Receives 21 Years

Yellville, Ark., Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—Arnold Comer, 14-year-old triple slayer, pleaded guilty today to a charge of murder in the second degree after a commission of physicians examined him under court orders and found that he was sane. He killed Charles Moore, Mrs. Sarah Boyd and Mrs. Boyd's granddaughter.

Judge J. N. Shinn announced that he would sentence the youth to 21 years' imprisonment.

38 BELIEVED DEAD IN ALABAMA SHAFT AFTER MINE BLAST

10 Bodies Are Recovered; 25 Men Brought Out Alive by Crews.

LIVES OF 5 ARE LOST IN ILLINOIS WORKINGS

Explosion Traps Repair Gang. Gas in Colorado Mine Takes Toll of 3.

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 29 (By the Associated Press).—Sixty-three miners were trapped by an explosion late this afternoon in Moss-boro mine of the Premier Coal Co., near Helena, and it is feared 38 of that number are dead. Twenty-five men have been brought out alive. The known dead number ten, that many bodies having been recovered.

The mine is in an isolated spot, difficult of access and cut off from wire communication. A relief train was started to the scene from Birmingham carrying doctors, nurses and miner rescue crews. No rescue help is available in the vicinity of the mine except local crews which are said probably to lack experience.

Two Groups Brought Out.

Twelve men alive were brought out in one group to be followed by another squad of thirteen workers, reports reaching here said.

The following bodies have been identified: William Harrison, Robert Ball, Doyle Lambort, Pat Adams, Bill Carle, Jeff Holloway, all white, and Hoosey Harrison, Enock Woodson, William Temple and Percy Pierce, negroes.

The mine is not a gaseous property, and the cause of the explosion is undetermined. Mining men familiar with the physical aspects of the property said they believed a pocket of gas had in some manner accumulated and exploded. The men were entombed just at quitting time.

Miners' Families Gather.

News of the disaster spread rapidly by means of the "communication of the hills," and within 30 minutes wives and children and other relatives were about the pit waiting and calling for loved ones. A biting, cold wind added to the misery of those waiting word from their relatives.

The mine is on property belonging to the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railway Co., and is leased to the Premier Coal Co. It is practically a new mine, with a 1,000-foot slope, and 12 entries on each side. Men were said to have been working in each of the entries. Rescue crews have explored only three or four of them.

The property is described as crude in its equipment. It is 5 miles from Helena, a station on the Louisville & Nashville railroad, and 30 miles out of Birmingham.

MAJ. HESSE SEEKS TO ABOLISH RIVALRY AMONG DETECTIVES

Lack of Cooperation Between Headquarters Staff and Precincts Seen.

ALL SLEUTHS ORDERED TO REPORT TO BUREAU

Four Sergeants Are Retired; Shifts in Ranks Given Board's Approval.

Steps were taken yesterday to stop rivalry between police, precincts and the detective bureau in working on unsolved crimes.

A memorandum was issued by Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, to commanding officers of all stations directing them to have their respective precinct detectives report daily at 1 p. m. for roll call at the detective bureau.

The order was framed by Maj. Hesse in conference with Inspector H. G. Pratt, assistant superintendent of police in command of the detective bureau.

Original Aim Lost. "This bureau," said Inspector Pratt, "was originally established as a center for policemen specializing in detection of criminals and to assist the precincts in clearing up their cases. In the years that have elapsed it has wandered far from that function. Rivalry has grown up between the bureau and the precincts. Police have sometimes felt that the bureau detectives were trying to hog glory for solution of cases."

"Maj. Hesse and I believe that there should be no bureau in the department operating to separate the component parts thereof. We are determined to put an end to what we consider an intolerable situation. This bureau will not be permitted to engage in unseemly rivalry with any other police unit. It will resume its intended function of aiding the precincts."

"When a mysterious crime occurs of sufficient moment to justify such action, we will assign men to help the precinct detectives and captains. And they will help henceforth, not hinder," said Maj. Hesse, who conferred with the captains and have convinced them of the integrity of our intentions. There will be a new era of cooperation and coordination."

Women's Bureau Next. "When the precinct detectives report for daily roll call, we will go over the cases of interest to each precinct. They will have a definite understanding of the ones each is responsible for. They will report their progress to us and we will report our progress to them. There will be free exchange of information, advice and help. We believe this will result in the institution of a united front in a determined drive against crime."

"We hope to accomplish the same result with reference to the women's bureau," said Maj. Hesse. Sergeants Owen C. Ryan, John R. Evans, John J. Whalen, James H. Lutton and John L. Kilmarth were retired on recommendation of the board of police surgeons. Privates O. R. Sanders, N. O. Holmes, L. E. Kelly, Esie Williams and O. J. Letterman were promoted to the rank of sergeant yesterday. They were assigned, in the order named, to precincts 11, 5, 2, 10 and 1. Sergeant Charles C. Wise was transferred from the First precinct to headquarters. K. Wilson was relieved as precinct detective and transferred to the detective bureau as detective sergeant. L. M. Wilson was transferred from the Fourteenth precinct to the Ninth and made precinct detective. T. T. Heffernan was shifted from motorcycle patrolman in the traffic bureau to precinct detective at the Fourteenth precinct.

Lieut. Hess Retained.

Detective Sergeant Harry Evans was recommended for retirement on half pay. Lieut. William P. Hesse recommended for retirement by the board of police surgeons, was granted the right to remain in active service by the commissioners on recommendation of the retirement board. The case of Capt. Charles T. Peck, also opposing retirement, did not come before the commissioners.

Policemen James R. Atwill and John F. Moore were dismissed from service.

AUTO SHOW EXHIBITS VALUED AT $500,000

200 Cars Are to Be Shown in Display Which Opens Tonight.

Motor cars and accessories valued at $500,000 will be placed on public exhibition in the annual automobile show of the Washington Automotive Trade Association, which will open tonight in the Washington auditorium. Thirty-six exhibitors will have 200 automobiles on display when the show opens. The cars will be displayed on the two main floors of the auditorium.

Final preparations for the exhibition were carried out under the supervision of Rudolph Jose, chairman of the association show committee, the other members of which are Raphael Semmes, Spencer B. Curry, Frank G. Stewart and J. M. Dugan.

Organ recitals and orchestra concerts will be broadcast nightly from the show rooms and the show will be officially opened with a radio address by Mr. Jose from station WMAL, Washington's new broadcasting station. The show, Mr. Jose said yesterday, will be a more varied and interesting exhibit than any past show.

Crandall to Build Theater in Frederick

Construction of a motion picture theater at a cost of $250,000 will be started soon in Frederick, Md., by the Stanley-Crandall Co., of this city, according to an announcement yesterday.

Harry M. Crandall, executive vice president of the company, has purchased, as a site for the theater, the Schley property opposite the Francis Scott Key hotel. The theater, which will be part of a chain of seventeen, will have a seating capacity of 2,000 and will be completed in the fall.

2 Former Policemen Taken as Fugitives

One of the institution's trucks, laden with prisoners, including Shipman and Nolan, was driven to this city for supplies five days ago. The two men escaped when the truck entered the city. Both are serving sentences for grand larceny, police say.

SIX LOCAL SCHOOLS PRESENT DIPLOMAS TO LARGE CLASSES

Business High Graduates Two Groups; Honor Pupils Are Announced.

CENTRAL GROUP HEARS THE REV. CHARLES WOOD

Fenning Addresses Eastern Students; Dr. Varela at Western Exercises.

Four Washington high schools and two junior high schools held commencement exercises yesterday. Members of the board of education, school executives and prominent citizens took part in the exercises. Business, Eastern, Central and Western High schools graduated large midyear classes, as did also Langley Junior High and Randall (colored) Junior High school.

The unlimited opportunities offered in the untried fields of art and science to qualified students who have taken advantage of the education offered by the public schools were outlined to the graduating class of Central High school last night by the Rev. Charles Wood, pastor of the Church of the Covenant and principal speaker of the evening.

Honor Pupils Announced.

Following the entrance to the auditorium of the graduating class, a march played by the school orchestra, invocation was pronounced by the Rev. Walter A. Morgan, of the Mount Pleasant Congregational church. Alvin W. Miller, principal of the school, announced the three honor pupils. The graduates of the school were made by Mr. Robert A. Maurer, former principal and now a professor at Georgetown university law school.

The following, who were announced as honor pupils, earned the distinction of completing their course with the average of 24 grades of excellent (the highest mark), out of a total of 32 grades: Henrietta Halam, Ruth Hays and Kenneth Stubbs.

The school orchestra rendered several musical selections throughout the exercises under the direction of H. P. Hoover, instructor of music at the school.

Business High Exercises.

Business High school had two commencement exercises yesterday. Certificates for the completion of the two year course were awarded in the afternoon and diplomas for completion of the four year course were given in the evening.

Harry O. Hine, secretary of the board of education, presided at the four year class graduation exercises last night. Forty-seven graduates were presented with diplomas. The invocation was said by the Rev. E. A. Lambert. Representative Allard H. Gasque, who was scheduled to deliver an address, was unable to attend because of illness. In his stead, Representative John J. McSwain, also of South Carolina, made the address.

McSwain Stresses Character.

Representative McSwain told the graduates that it is the content of knowledge that makes success, but the character behind the knowledge. He emphasized the necessity for sincerity and hard work and of developing integrity of character in order to attain success. Mr. McSwain impressed upon the graduates that the man who develops muscle with dumbbells and Indian clubs does not occupy the same place in the world as the man who develops muscle saving wood for the fire.

The valedictory address was delivered by Miss Rose H. Plotnick, who was awarded a scholarship for her work in gaining 42 3's out of a possible 44. Clara Marian Butt, Dorothy Krautwurst, Mary Bernadette Splawn and Irene Weber were awarded prizes for improvement in scholarship. The scholarship awards were presented by Miss May P. Bradshaw, assistant principal of the school.

Harley V. Speelman, register of the Treasury, assisted by Honor Adet Gilbert Potts, awarded the diplomas. Music was furnished by the Business High School orchestra under the direction of Miss Emma Louise Thompson.

2-Year Class Graduated.

The exercises for the two-year class were held in the afternoon. Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent of schools, presided. The invocation was said by Rabbi J. T. Loeb. The valedictory was given by Miss Margaret Mae Carter. Scholarship awards were given by Allan Davis, principal of the school. President William Mather Lewis of George Washington university addressed the graduates. He told them that there were seven requisites to a successfully educated man—honesty, ability, knowledge, good health, ability to enjoy leisure without paying to be amused and service to others.

Certificates of having finished the two-year course were presented by Charles A. Jones, of the Alumni association.

Fenning Is Speaker.

Boys and girls, who have been efficient and conscientious in the classroom and retain these qualities in later life are the ones a great work and worth-while things in life await. Commissioner Frederick A. Fenning declared before the graduating class at Eastern High school.

The school orchestra, under the direction of Mrs. Carrie V. Byram, director of music at the school, furnished musical selections. Diplomas were presented by Dr. Raymond A. Fisher, president of the Home and School association, and the exercises were presided over by Charles Hart, principal of the school. High school commencement exercises in its new auditorium. This is the first time that the new auditorium has housed a graduating class. Twenty-four members of the graduating class, among whom was his daughter, Adele, were presented with diplomas by Dr. J. Varela, Minister from Uruguay. Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, presided.

The exercises were opened with a recitation, "The American Creed," by Ford Young, president of the graduating class. Dr. Ballou then introduced Dr. John J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education, who delivered the address. Honor pupils for the semester just ended were then called to the platform and congratulated by Dr. E. S. Newton, principal of the school. Ninety pupils, six of whom were graduates, were on the honor roll for excellence in studies.

The invocation was given by the Rev. W. W. Shearer, pastor of St. Columbia's church. Miss Charlotte Harriman, a graduate of Western High school, sang a group of contralto solos. She was accompanied by George H. Wilson at the piano. Diplomas were then awarded by Dr. Varela, assisted by Miss Elizabeth S. Dessez, a graduate of the school. Musical selections were given by a trio comprising Sol Miller, violin; L. E. Manely, cello, and Miss Ellmore Hulbert, a member of the graduating class of next June, at the piano.

Simmons Speaks at Langley.

The midyear graduation exercises of Langley Junior High school were held yesterday afternoon in Eastern High school auditorium. Harry O. Hine, secretary of the board of education, presided. The invocation was by the Rev. S. B. Daugherty.

Representative R. G. Simmons delivered the address. He told the graduates that hard work and integrity were necessary to the winning of success. A framed landscape picture was presented to H. W. Draper, principal of the school, by Edward Radue, president of the class. Mr. Draper expressed his regret that he and the graduates must part company and wishing them success in their undertakings.

Graduates were presented with diplomas by Mr. Hine. Presentation of diplomas followed by the playing of the National Anthem and benediction. Music was furnished by an orchestra under the direction of L. E. Manely. Singing was directed by Mrs. J. W. Terberry. The exercises were held in the evening at the Langley junior high school.

Randall Students Speak.

The third commencement exercises of the Randall junior high school were held in the Zion Baptist church, Perry W. Howard being the principal speaker. Dr. J. Hayden Johnson presided. Diplomas were awarded by Miss M. P. Shadd, assistant superintendent. Dr. Aquilla Sayles said the invocation and benediction.

Student participation featured the program. Arthur Carter addressing the graduates on "Our Opportunity," Ethel Jenkins, "Our Responsibility," Adelaide Gillard, "Our Reward," Roy W. Tibbs, of Howard university, played Dr. Bussey's "Prelude in A Minor," responding to an encore with "The Dance of the Cups," by the same composer.

G. C. Wilkinson, first assistant superintendent, stated that he had come to the exercises directly from a conference at Franklin school, where immediate construction of a new Randall Junior High School had been agreed upon. He announced that all graduates would continue their education in the high school. Student honors were accorded Florine Wedge, Ethel Jenkins, Arthur Carter and Myrtle Garner. Adelaide Gillard and Solomon Aiston were named as recommended for superior school spirit. Arthur Carter and Clarence Green were given special mention for supporting themselves while in school. A musical program under the direction of Mrs. L. H. Johnson included "The Wreath" (Mazurka), "The Heavens Resound" (Beethoven) and "To Thee O Country" (Elchberg school). "Moonlight and Snow" (Czibulka) and "Snowflakes" (Cowan). Girls Glee club.

Ward, 50 years old, of 3406 12th place northwest, a member of fire truck No. 12 was thrown to the street and seriously injured at Connecticut avenue and Newlands street, Chevy Chase, Md. MERRY EVENING PASSED BY CITIZENS FEDERATION Fourth Annual 'Get-Acquainted' Meeting an Event of Abundant Satire.

REPORTS READ IN SONG

Members of Congress, District officials and newspapers were impaled on a roasting fork and held over coals of satire at the fourth annual "get acquainted" meeting of the Federation of Citizens Associations at the Lafayette hotel last evening. The annual affair was called a smoker before it became the venue for constitutional associations to accredit feminine delegates to the federation.

The program was interrupted by an angry delegate in the person of William S. Torbert, who arose and insisted on presenting a committee report, despite the efforts of President Jesse C. Suter to quiet him, on the ground that it was a social and not a business session.

"My committee has had referred to it a bill to enlarge the powers of the commission," said Delegate Torbert. "We insist that it be referred to a committee of engineers. It contains too many dams."

Allan Davis presented a report in song for the committee on music, intoning a lyric entitled "Bunk," dedicated to President Suter.

Proctor L. Dougherty led the director of traffic over jocular hurdles, describing the adventures of a lone motorist who, confused by the new traffic lights in Sixteenth street, could only drive around and around Scott circle, until the police "shot the poor darned fool."

W. T. Swanton was jocose over the proposed traction merger and the street car service of the Capital City. James C. Yaden called for three daily eight-hour shifts in the public schools. George A. Ricker, made up as Carl Schurz, an inventor, displayed a machine to extract useful reports from committees of Congress, drawing from it a bill for national representation for the District, after mystic incantations.

George O'Connor sang and Florence Adams entertained with readings.

PAJAMA GIRL FACES STERN PARENT TODAY

Blanche McGlone May Escape Trial if Father Says She Is Only 14.

Blanche McGlone, more familiarly known as the "pajama girl," may never face the judge on charges of driving while drunk and of failing to show an operator's permit. Today her father, Ray McGlone, a railroad engineer, of Toledo, Ohio, is expected to arrive in Washington to prove that his daughter is 14 years old.

If the girl is found to be only 14 Judge Macdonald, who was shocked the other day when the girl appeared before him in a red bathing suit and pink pajamas, will turn the case over to the juvenile court.

For the past four days the "pajama girl" has been held at the house of detention. Today she may escape facing the judge, but it is certain she will come in contact with parental authority.

Waiters Ask Coolidge To Ball; Ban Tuxedos

President Coolidge was invited to a waiters' ball yesterday, but was told to leave his tuxedo at the White House if he accepted. The waiters, forced to wear formal clothes at work, have placed a strict ban on such clothing at the ball.

The invitation was left at the White House yesterday afternoon by a committee representing the Washington Hotel and Restaurant Employes alliance. The ball will be given February 28.

UNION AND OWNERS EACH OFFER A PLAN TO END COAL STRIKE

Are Considered, but Neither Has Been Voted on at Philadelphia.

BOTH WOULD MAKE USE OF HUGHES' SERVICES

Five-Year Agreement Asked in Each Proposal; Little Hope for Either.

Philadelphia, Jan. 29 (By A. P.). Anthracite miners and operators at their joint conference today each presented a proposal to end the long strike. Discussion immediately was entered into on both plans and shortly after 7 p. m. adjournment was taken until tomorrow afternoon without a vote having been taken on either proposition.

Analysis of both plans, which were given out after the conference adjourned, showed they contained proposals that previously have been voted down by one side or the other. This did not give any hope to those well informed on the situation that either plan would be accepted as presented.

The operators' plan is identical to that which the mine workers rejected in the last days of the New York conference with the exception that one paragraph was added to it. This paragraph read:

"No change in the wage rates paid shall be made except in case of economic necessity."

Both Mention C. E. Hughes.

The mine workers' proposition contained features of the plans submitted by Gov. Pinchot at Harrisburg and Alvan Markle, chairman of the joint conference.

Both plans bring in the name of Charles E. Hughes, former Secretary of State and former chairman of the United Mine Workers of America. In the operators' plan he would be requested to select three persons to act as arbitrators in case the anthracite conciliation board could not agree on readjusting wages, if economic conditions require.

In the miners' plan, Mr. Hughes, James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, and Gov. Pinchot are named as a fact-finding commission to investigate all facts relating to the industry in the event either side should make a request of the conciliation board for revision of the agreement after June 1, 1928.

This commission would then report to the conciliation board the facts and "proceed to dispose of the matter as promptly as possible."

Both Ask 5 Year Pact.

Each proposition provides for a five-year agreement at the old wage rates. In the operators' plan these rates would remain in effect until August 31, 1926; in the miners' until August 31, 1928. Each provides that the machine-ery for readjusting wages shall start on June 1, the operators' in 1926, the miners' in 1928. Thus, the miners' plan would give the workers a two and a half-year agreement without change in wage rates.

The miners' plan provides that the fact-finding commission shall have the assistance of three public accountants, one representing the public, one the operators, and one the miners. Mr. Markle's respected plan made the same suggestion. The miners' plan includes the Pinchot proposition for a modified check-off system for collecting union dues, voted down by the operators.

Other parts of the miners' plan are similar to those already rejected. The anthracite operators today voted confidence in the actions and policies pursued by their negotiating committee in the joint conference with the mine workers.

The action of the operators was prompted by the motion made in the joint conference on Wednesday when President John L. Lewis, of the miners, asserted that the members of the operators' negotiating committee did not have the authority to make a final agreement.

Secretary Davis Hopeful.

(By the Associated Press.)

Secretary Davis, of the Labor Department, has informed President Coolidge that he has hopes for settlement of the anthracite mining suspension as a result of the negotiations between the operators and the union officials now in progress at Philadelphia.

This impression has been gained from the government's observers at Philadelphia, and does not arise from any step taken by the government itself.

White House that there is no change in the administration's policy of noninterference.

WILSON WAR VIEWS TOLD TO COL. HOUSE IN CORRESPONDENCE

Letters and Telegrams of Former President Are Amazing in Variety.

PAPERS IN THE POST COVER ALL ESSENTIALS

Series, Beginning on Sunday, to Omit Nothing That History Demands.

Special to The Washington Post. New Haven, Conn., Jan. 29.—A complete list of the letters, telegrams and cablegrams from Woodrow Wilson to Col. E. M. House, running from October 18, 1911, to February 12, 1917, just before the United States declared a state of war with Germany, has been made public here. The mere compilation of titles gives an amazing glimpse of the close association between the two men and shows that House was consulted by the President on virtually every problem that came before him for solution.

The publication of Col. House's story of this memorable period will begin in The Washington Post and 51 other newspapers throughout the world on Sunday.

Intimate Topics Touched.

It is clear, from reading the list of messages, that the President's complete trust in his friend led him to write freely on the most intimate political topics. The attitude of William Jennings Bryan, for instance; the national strength of the United States; the impending resignation of William F. McCombs from the Democratic national committee. There are separate dossiers on possible cabinet appointments and appointments to the newly constituted Federal Reserve Board.

When the war started the President continued to communicate his ideas of men and events to Col. House with discussion of the German Ambassador, Von Bernstorff; Ambassador Walter Hines Page; the mine strike; the German plot; the German plots, the House negotiations for mediation in the war, the sinking of various American ships by German submarines and, indeed, everything that called for the prompt advice of a wise confidential counselor.

Nothing Essential Omitted.

In this connection Dr. Charles Seymour, professor of history at Yale university, who compiled these "Intimate Papers of Col. House," will say in a note of acknowledgment that the published edition of these letters and telegrams will contain everything that called for the prompt advice of a wise confidential counselor.

Some three and a half years ago Col. House gave to Yale university, for deposit in the university library, his entire collection of political papers. For permission to select the most significant of these I myself and all students of recent history are deeply in his debt. The responsibility for the choice and arrangement of these papers, as well as their interpretation, must rest upon me. Col. House, whose sense of the scientific historical spirit is very lively, agreed that no essential document which might affect the history of the period should be omitted. Whatever deletions appear in the published papers have been dictated by the exigencies of space or by a regard for the feelings of persons still alive, and in no case do they alter the historical meaning of the papers.

$1,000,000 Insurance To John McCormack

New York, Jan. 29 (By A. P.).

John McCormack, the singer, has insured himself for $1,000,000 under the endowment plan, it was announced today. The insurance is in the form of a series of 10-year policies, the last of which has just been issued. In a few years, he will begin receiving payments of annual installments and by 1936 will have received the total million.

With the proceeds of his concerts and the immense royalties on phonograph records, his income between the ages of 45 and 51 is expected to rank with that of the wealthiest financiers and captains of industry, the announcement said. The policy was described as probably the largest ever recorded in endowment insurance.

Durkin Arraigned; Pleads Not Guilty

Chicago, Jan. 29 (By A. P.).

Martin Durkin, automobile thief and gunman, pleaded not guilty today to two charges of murder and his trial was set for April 5.

Notice was served by Durkin's counsel that he reserved the right to ask a change of venue. Durkin has admitted that he shot and killed Edwin C. Shanahan, Department of Justice operative, but has denied that he killed Police Sergeant Harry Gray who was slain in the firing when Durkin escaped a police trap only to be captured a few weeks later in St. Louis.

CAPTAIN OF LINER DESCRIBES RESCUE OF ANTINOE CREW

Radio Compass Guided the Roosevelt to Wreck; Oil Prevented Sinking.

DECLARES MEN SAVED IN PITIFUL CONDITION

Without Food or Water Two Days and Suffering From Hurts; Own Crew Worn.

New York, Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—Capt. George Fried, commander of the United States liner President Roosevelt, radioed today the first detailed account of the heroic rescue of the crew of the Antinoe, in which he attributed his success to the radio compass, which enabled him to reach the sinking freighter when that ship had given her position 100 miles away.

The Lyle gun, used in shooting lines to the Antinoe, and the use of oil were additional factors in making the rescue a complete success, Capt. Fried's message to the United States lines graphically tells the story of the rescue.

"Five forty a. m., of 24th, received SOS from steamship Antinoe, proceeded to her position by radio compass bearings which proved position 100 miles in error. Along side her noon, wind west, force ten, with violent snow squalls. High rough seas were rolling 35 degrees. Took position quarter mile, windward. Pumped oil overboard with excellent effect. Her captain claims this saved them sinking."

Two Men Lose Lives.

"Lost sight of her 9 p. m. Her radio and dynamo out of commission. Severe snow squalls. Picked her up again 3:40 p. m., twenty-fifth, with engine and fire room flooded. No light broken, heavily listed Starboard."

"Weather moderated. Attempted to send manned lifeboats. Chief Officer Miller in charge. When lowered lifeboat vicious hail squall hit us. Sea proved too rough for lifeboat. Men spilled out of boat but managed to get back in boat. Covered with fuel oil, seemed exhausted. Ordered men aboard, assisted by life lines. All recovered except Wirtzman, master at arms. Helman, boatswain's mate. * * * Weather increasing. Twenty-sixth, continued station, distributing oil weather shield. Antinoe showing one oil lamp."

"Her distress signal indicated perilous situation. Attempted float boat to her by aid Lyle gun. Got boat to her, but she lost it. Tried floating cask, failed. Twenty-seventh, kept station, attempted float boat to her. * * * failed. Fired Lyle gun again and rockets got line to her. When they hauled in line cut on their rail. Lost boat. Fired Lyle gun sixteen times. * * *

Expert Gives Advice.

"Suggestion Col. Hearn, artillery expert, passenger, use spiral spring between projectile and line successfully. Chief Engineer Turner made thirteen practice shots. Weather now moderating; occasional snow squalls. Seven twenty p. m., lowered manned lifeboat successfully; took off twelve men. Boat badly damaged. Midnight, weather greatly improved and aided by moonlight, took remainder crew aboard."

"Capt. Torse had to be carried aboard and, despite his physical condition, asked to be carried to the deck to express gratitude. All crew pitiful condition. No food nor water two days. Little clothing. Exposure. Minor injuries. One thirty-five a. m., proceeded on our way. Antinoe still floating, both well decks away; 50 degrees starboard list. Stood by her three and a half days. Our own crew are most exhausted from long vigil."

When my two men were lost, Mr. Cochran and Mr. Whelan held very impressive services. * * *

"Some passengers and crew sustained minor injuries from heavy rolling."

"Impossible to cook properly. Menu limited. * * *

The last paragraph of Capt. Fried's message regarding the menu was explained by officials of the United States lines as being a way to do with fresh vegetables."

The President Roosevelt taking out food of a staple nature sufficient for a round trip. For this reason there has been no shortage of food provisions, only the delicacies have been cut down."

Is Coast Artilleryman.

Col. Clint C. Hearn, of the coast artillery, in flight, passenger on the President Roosevelt who used his knowledge as a gunnery expert in reaching the imperiled crew of the Antinoe, as told by Capt. Fried. When the Roosevelt's deck gun failed to shoot its line across to the Antinoe, Col. Hearn devised a spiral coil to be put between projectile and rope to break the shock. This aided materially in establishing contact between the two ships, so the rescue work was effected.

The American Steamship Owners association met in New York this afternoon and passed resolutions declaring the captain and men of the Roosevelt had upheld the finest traditions of the sea, and merited "signal recognition by the government of the United States."

Praise Is World Wide.

Nautical men the world over are praising the rescue of the crew of the Antinoe.

"It is the greatest achievement of its kind in marine history," says Capt. John F. Neillher, secretary and treasurer of the Neptune Association of America.

The rescue is regarded as a duplication under more difficult circumstances of that achieved two months ago by a sister ship, the President Harding, when 28 officers and men of the Italian freighter Igazio Florio were saved.

Capt. Paul Greening, commander of the President Harding, now assistant European director of the United States Lines, has sent congratulations to Capt. George Fried, of the President Roosevelt, by wireless from London.

Thomas Rosbottom, general manager of the United States Lines, wireless to Capt. Fried as follows:

"Accept sincere thanks for most heroic work in rescue of crew of Antinoe. It is a splendid achievement, highly creditable to the United States Lines and our merchant marine. Heartiest congratulations."

The chairman and committee of Lloyds wireless Capt. Fried:

"Heartily congratulate you and your crew on the successful result of your splendid effort to rescue the crew of the Antinoe."

Mrs. Fried, in New York, had one chief thought. "Now I hope George will go to bed and get some sleep," she said.

George V Cables Praise Of Rescue to Coolidge

(By Associated Press.)

King George of England sent President Coolidge a cablegram yesterday praising the officers and crew of the American liner President Roosevelt for rescuing in an appreciation of the rescue of the entire crew of the British freighter Antinoe, and expressing regret that two of the rescuing force lost their lives.

In reply, the President cabled that "this event is but another illustration of the heroism and gallantry which have characterized alike the mariners of the United States and Great Britain."

In his message, the king said: "The news of the heroism displayed by the officers and crew of the President Roosevelt in rescuing all hands of the Antinoe has deeply moved me. In expressing my thankfulness and admiration for this splendid example of skill and gallantry, I know that I am only voicing the feeling of all British hearts. At the same time we grieve for the loss of those who nobly sacrificed their lives and would ask you, Mr. President, to assure the bereaved families of my heartfelt sympathy."

President Coolidge's reply follows:

"I have been gratified to receive your majesty's gracious message of appreciation of the rescue of the entire crew of the British steamer Antinoe by the American steamer President Roosevelt, and the families of those who lost their lives in this humanitarian effort. I shall be proud of your generous expression of condolence. The event is but another illustration of the heroism and gallantry which have characterized alike the mariners of the United States and Great Britain, and while regretting the occasion, therefore, I rejoice that American sailors have been able to help those of Great Britain."

Capt. Fried Is Praised By Wilbur for Release

Secretary of Navy Wilbur yesterday congratulated Capt. George Fried, commander of the S. S. President Roosevelt, his officers and crew for rescuing the personnel of the S. S. Antinoe "under the most trying and difficult circumstances."

Capt. Fried enlisted in the navy in 1900 and served continuously until 1916, when he transferred to the army. He served on a naval transport during the world war.

"The department," Secretary Wilbur wrote, "has noted the efficient and gallant acts of yourself and officers and crew of the S. S. President Roosevelt in saving life under the most trying and difficult circumstances. The Navy Department is proud of your record of sixteen years of active service in the navy and your subsequent service as an officer of the naval reserve. You have the department's congratulations on your recent act of saving the lives of the personnel of the S. S. Antinoe. You have maintained the best traditions of the sea and American seamen."

LEFT PARTIES TO FORCE BALLOT ON STAMP TAX

French Cartel's Plan Held Irregular, and May Give Victory to Doumer.

FINAL DECISION TODAY

Paris, Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—The radical and socialist leaders decided today that the financial battle in the chamber is being waged on ground which is unfavorable for them and resolved to change their plans and draw the government, if possible, onto a new field where the radical-socialist chances are better.

It was agreed by the radicals and socialists this morning that the chamber should abandon consideration of the bills they themselves had presented through the chamber finance committee, and take a vote on Finance Minister Doumer's proposed stamp tax on all business transactions.

Supporters of the government, however, declare that this maneuver merely shows the radical-socialist fight is on purely political lines. The procedure asked for by the radical-socialist leaders, it is pointed out, is contrary to parliamentary rules, the finance committee having rejected Mr. Doumer's bills and reported on substitutes which are the only measures now before the house, with amendments which have been proposed. It is held by the government supporters that the stamp tax can be voted on only as an amendment to the measures of the cartel.

The different groups of the cartel will deliberate separately on the question tomorrow morning. The chances are that they will all approve the maneuver suggested by Leon Blum, socialist leader, to force a vote on the government plan before the time comes for an issue on their own measures. This skirmish, it is thought, is likely to have a very close finish with the chances in favor of the government, in view of the exceptional character of the procedure proposed.

COURT ALLOWS SALM TO VISIT YOUNG SON

Counsel for Countess, Former

Millicent Rogers, Agrees; Suit Is Recognized.

New York, Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—Count Ludwig Salm Hoogstraeten will be permitted to see his infant son, Peter, four days a week, between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon at some hotel at Palm Beach, Fla., to be designated later. This stipulation, made in open court today, brings the countess, the former Millicent Rogers, into official recognition of the pendency of the court's action for a legal separation for the first time. It was signed without reservation by her counsel.

Count Salm will be permitted to visit with the child in the presence of its mother or a nurse. The stipulation conceded that it would be detrimental to the health of the child to bring him to New York now.

The question of baptism of the child in the Catholic faith was disposed of in the stipulation, which said the countess had represented this as having been done at Palm Beach last December 1.

Band Fires Building In Segregation Strife

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 29 (By A. P.).

Approximately 50 white men set fire to the sales offices of a negro subdivision at Washington Park, a northwestern suburb of Tampa, and drove off four special policemen there last night. At police headquarters it was said no report was made until today, and that motorcycle officers have been assigned to the district.

There have been repeated protests against the proposed negro subdivision and J. M. Dobie, a negro property owner, recently reported various threats including the placing of a fiery cross before his home.

THE BIBLE

"All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in Righteousness."—2 Tim. 3:16.

THE Bible contains a great variety of different compositions, embracing 66 smaller volumes comprising historical narratives, laws, ordinance, poetry, doctrine, moral and religious precepts written by different persons widely separated from each other in place and time. More than 1,500 years elapsed while the authors of these productions were engaged in writing them. Even in a literary aspect the Sacred Scriptures form the most remarkable book the world has ever seen. The wisest and best of men have borne witness to their efficacy as an instrument of enlightenment and purification. It reveals the character of God, and nature and condition of man and the end for which he was created. It deals with the inseparable connection between sin and misery, the principles on which the Ruler of the Universe is governing the world, and His revelation of Himself through Christ. Wherever the Bible has been received its effects are such as no other book has ever produced. Character and conduct are altered, elevated and purified. It supplies the most powerful motives to honesty, industry and social integrity.

The Word of God fills up the measure of our wants, directs, controls, sustains and comforts through all conditions in life.

TAXES AND THE TARIFF.

Who are the farmer's real friends in Congress? Who is his genuine spokesman?

One set of volunteer defenders of the farmer is holding that the country is so prosperous and revenues so great that taxes should be slashed much more than the pending bill provides. The other set insists that the farmer is impoverished by local and not Federal taxes. Another set declares that the tariff is the root of all bucolic evil, and that there should not be too much tax reduction, but rather tariff slashing.

That there is prosperity generally can not be truthfully denied. Does the farmer get his share? If not, is the tariff or high taxation to blame, or is there some other reason, not connected with either, which demoralizes agriculture?

The fact is that the average farmer is not burdened by Federal taxes. His income tax is not large, and he pays no inheritance or gift tax worth mentioning. The elimination of the estate tax will not affect him materially. His heaviest tax burden is of his own making. It consists of taxation for bond issues and interest thereon, which he voted upon himself for good roads, school houses, bridges, expensive State and county government machinery, useless commissions, etc.

If there is general prosperity it is due to the tariff, which keeps industry active and makes employment at high wages a continuous performance. The employed are able to live generously and pay high prices for food from the farm. The market thus furnished to the farmer is the best market enjoyed by any farmers in the world. The American farmer could afford to pay handsomely for the maintenance of such a market, but it can not be shown that he pays a cent for it. All his own products are protected by a high tariff, and all articles which he consumes, except clothing, are admitted free of duty. Rough clothing, such as a farmer wears while at work, is cheaper now than it was under a lower tariff.

If the tariff should be lowered for the sake of benefiting the farmer by permitting him to buy cheap foreign-made articles, and he should actually import such articles on a large scale, the inevitable result would be the crippling of American factories making the same goods. The factories would shut down and the workers would be unemployed. How long could unemployed workers pay high prices for food from the farm? The first result of unemployment would be a shrinkage of consumption of foodstuffs. Every unemployed worker would be empty-bellied. Instead of buying food he would tighten his belt and go out to look for work—perhaps as a farm laborer, only to be turned away by the farmer whose market had disappeared.

As matters stand, all Americans are protected by the tariff except shipowners.

The reduction of taxes and destruction of the tariff are impossible at the same time. The tax reduction bill is based upon the estimated receipts of customs duties at the regular figure. If the customs revenues were abolished some other kind of taxes would have to be levied to maintain the government. Tax reduction is now possible because of the general prosperity and because the customs revenues help to fill the Treasury. The enemies of the tariff would destroy both prosperity and revenue, and within a few months, if they were successful, they would be called upon to increase taxes to make up a large deficit; and these taxes would fall upon the people after their prosperity had been swept away.

It probably doesn't help much to tell a French boy if he will be good he may be prime minister some day.

TRIBUTES TO THE LIVING.

At the close of his term as Speaker of the House of Representatives John G. Carlisle, of Kentucky, was the recipient of a beautiful silver service, which was presented by the Republican members of the House "as a tribute to the eminent fairness" of Mr. Carlisle while presiding officer of that body. On the occasion of the eightieth birthday of Speaker Cannon a somewhat similar tribute was extended to "Uncle Joe" by the entire membership. Champ Clark was later lauded by his colleagues on both sides of the chamber because he had won the respect of all those who served under his leadership. Then, too, the late James R. Mann, of Illinois, stood a fire of verbal bouquets. Every man in the House recognized the earnest, conscientious labors of the gentleman from Illinois in the performance of his duties.

On Friday, therefore, no surprise was caused when Mr. Tilson, of Massachusetts, the Republican floor leader, moved a recess for ten minutes in order that his colleagues might have an opportunity to say a few nice things about that fine type of Southern gentleman, Charles M. Stedman, of North Carolina, the occasion being the eighty-fifth anniversary of his birth.

When eulogies are pronounced in memory of one of their number who has "passed the veil" the only members present usually are those who have been assigned to the task of preparing the "addresses" for the Congressional Record. On Friday nearly every seat was filled, and the sentiments expressed were sincere and happy.

Maj. Stedman has served for fourteen years in Congress. He is the only veteran of the Confederacy remaining in the House, and it may truthfully be said of him that if every veteran of the cause for which he fought had been fortunate enough to share his kindly qualities and lovable disposition they would have captured the North without firing a shot. In the old days the passing of a member of the House was followed by the draping of his desk in black and the placing on the crape of a bunch of flowers each morning until after the funeral. This custom of spreading verbal violets on the living birthday celebrant is a great improvement over the old habit of decorating the desks of the departed.

AN EPIC OF THE SEA.

It must make every American thrill with pride to read of the heroic rescue of the crew of the British steamer Antiope by officers and seamen of the President Roosevelt, under command of Capt. Fried. For four days Capt. Fried and his officers and men battled against a tempest-tossed sea, described by veterans as one of the most appalling in their experience, to be rewarded in the end by a complete victory, all of the 25 officers and men of the Antiope being saved.

There were so many elements of the dramatic in this remarkable epic of the deep that it would be unfair perhaps to pick out any particular act or individual performance as exceeding another. The conduct of every member of the President Roosevelt's personnel, from Capt. Fried down, was an example of finest courage and indomitable spirit. The President Roosevelt did not give up its efforts after it had saved twelve of the men on the Antiope. Capt. Fried and the first officer, Robert Miller, redoubled their efforts, more determined than ever to save every man on the doomed freighter if it were humanly possible.

This devotion to moral duty recalls with sharp contrast the abandonment of the crew of the submarine S-51 by the City of Rome last fall. Americans are proud of their men of the sea. They are grateful for the glowing tributes which the British press bestows upon Capt. Fried and his heroes. These tributes are deserved, and in a measure compensate for the shame with which the cowardly act of the officers of the City of Rome is contemplated.

This latest romance of the sea emphasizes once more the great revolution that has taken place in ocean travel by the development of wireless. Had the Antiope not been equipped with wireless it would have gone down with all its crew. And this makes more significant the statement of the London press that at the present moment not less than 700 ships, without wireless equipment are endeavoring to ride out one of the most terrific gales Old Neptune has ever known. It is estimated that 50,000 lives are endangered as a consequence. Startling figures, these. The day should be speeded when no ship, however small, will be sent to sea without the means of calling for help.

Feminism won't worry us a great deal until somebody begins to hold beauty contests for males.

A TREASURY DEFICIT.

In the discussion of the 1926 tax bill in the Senate Thursday Senator Harrison said that he believed the proposed reduction in internal revenue taxes could be increased to $500,000,000 annually with safety to the Treasury. Senator Smoot replied:

I am quite sure the senator from Mississippi would not like to have a law enacted here that would result at the end of the year in a deficit in the matter of meeting the expenditures of the government.

Senator Harrison replied:

I would hate that, but it would be a pretty good thing for the taxpayers if we were to do so. It might make us economize more.

But economy should precede any such program suggested by the senator from Mississippi. A deficit next year brought about by a deliberate act of Congress will have wrought the mischief before economy could be put in practice.

A Treasury deficit is never a good thing under any circumstances, not even for the sake of pinching the people into practicing economy.

It is interesting to know that from 1898 to 1904 there was no Federal deficit in any year except the two when the war with Spain was in progress. There were deficits in 1904 and 1905, and again in 1908, 1909 and 1910, and again in 1913, 1914 and 1915. Since and including 1913 there have been eight years of deficits and three years of surplus. During the last two years there has been a large surplus; but this does not justify Congress in inviting another deficit.

How times change! In 1776 it was "we, the people." Now it's "They, the government."

THE ECONOMY WAVE SPREADS.

Now that the Congress is in a fair way to agree upon a program for radical reductions in Federal taxes there are indications that the legislatures of many of the States are about to follow suit. Minnesota, New York and Massachusetts have already started the reform movement. However, instead of reducing revenues while continuing the necessity for taxation, the three States mentioned have begun at the other end and are searching for opportunities to cut expenditures as the preliminary move. It was the women of Minnesota who discovered the road to tax reform by pointing out that the rolls of the State were crowded with the names of scores of persons whose principal activities appear to have been confined to the arduous labor of signing these rolls on each recurring pay day with scrupulous regularity. Minnesota has reduced its budget expenditures through the simple process of cutting off those pay-roll signers, and this has been accomplished without apparent detriment to the State itself.

Through an amendment to its constitution, ratified by the voters last November, the State of New York is enabled to consolidate a number of "departments," to abolish entirely many "commissions" whose duties interlocked and overlapped, and to accomplish this desideratum a commission headed by former Gov.

Hughes was selected by Gov. Smith and is now at work on the outline plan for "consolidation and elimination." Mr. Hughes is in his element in work of this character. He demonstrated his ability as a reorganizer in his capacity as special investigator of the insurance department of the State.

The commission will make its report and with that its duties and existence will cease, wherein it differs from most of the commissions of the State, which were created for a special purpose and which have continued to exist without signs of life, other than around the first of each month, when the clerical force is busy, even though the commissioners themselves serve without pay.

Gov. Smith was successful in securing the indorsement of the voters of the State on his program for reducing the number of tax eaters in Albany. But it is doubtful if his latest proposal will be so well received. He suggests that there are too many counties, and advocates the elimination of six of these divisions by consolidating them with six others. One of the counties marked for the discard is Livingston. That is the home and birthplace of Senator Wadsworth. Anyone can guess how that proposal will be received by the senior senator from New York.

Gov. Fuller of Massachusetts has discovered that the number of employees—he designates them as nonproducers—has increased enormously within the past few years, and he, too, emulating the example of his fellow governor of New York, has recommended an investigation with the view to the reduction of the personnel. Gov. Fuller thinks there are altogether too many names on the pay roll. Undoubtedly the people are of the same opinion. But the gentlemen in the State house hold briefs for the tax eaters rather than for the tax payers, so that the efforts of the governor in the way of reducing the number of unnecessary State officials and employees may not be effective.

Leander swam the Hellespont. "Phew!" said he. "And not a darned camera man in sight."

BOARD OF PUBLIC WELFARE.

The Senate committee on the District of Columbia has reported favorably the bill introduced by Senator Capper, its chairman, to create a board of public welfare for the District. This action was taken the same day that the House committee on the District adopted a motion by Representative McLeod, of Michigan, to refer all proposed legislation affecting Washington to the citizens' advisory council. All of which indicates that members of Congress apparently are giving more consideration than ever before to the wishes of the people of this city so far as legislation which affects the National Capital is concerned. This is a matter highly gratifying to the citizens.

The majority of the people of Washington doubtless approve the Capper bill. A board of public welfare that would have supervision of all municipal welfare work is needed here. It would appear illogical, therefore, to pass a mothers' aid bill or any other measure that properly comes within the scope of welfare work before the enactment of the Capper bill. Once a board of public welfare is established and its functions fixed, other legislation along this line may be more intelligently considered. Such order of procedure would save the members of both houses much time and trouble.

The fact that eighteen carloads of cabbages reached Chicago from the fields of Holland in which they were grown was thought of sufficient importance to warrant telegraphing to the Associated Press. Those fellows in Chicago who have so much to say about the necessity for legislation in the interest of the farmer appear to be worried over the invasion of the American cabbage market by the Dutch producers of kraut. Those chaps don't know that farmers raise anything besides wheat, oats, rye and corn. But the Eastern agriculturist won't worry over the receipt of 300 tons of Dutch cabbage. New York State farmers raise cabbage by the thousands of tons.

It is significant that those who insist upon a larger tax reduction in the 1926 tax bill base their argument on the certain prospects of very large revenues for the next three years at least. If this takes place, it will be due to continued business prosperity, which is admitted. When the matter of the tariff comes up for discussion these same individuals probably will turn right about and charge that prosperity is a myth and a fiction of the imagination!

German scientists have discovered that sodium and calcium paratoluene sulphonamides will kill weeds along garden walks. This may be true, but most Americans will prefer "the disease to the remedy" if they have to pronounce the name of that remedy.

A stock tip from London: The Prince of Wales has substituted chewing-gum for cigarettes. This should put the quotation on cliche stock up at least 20 points.

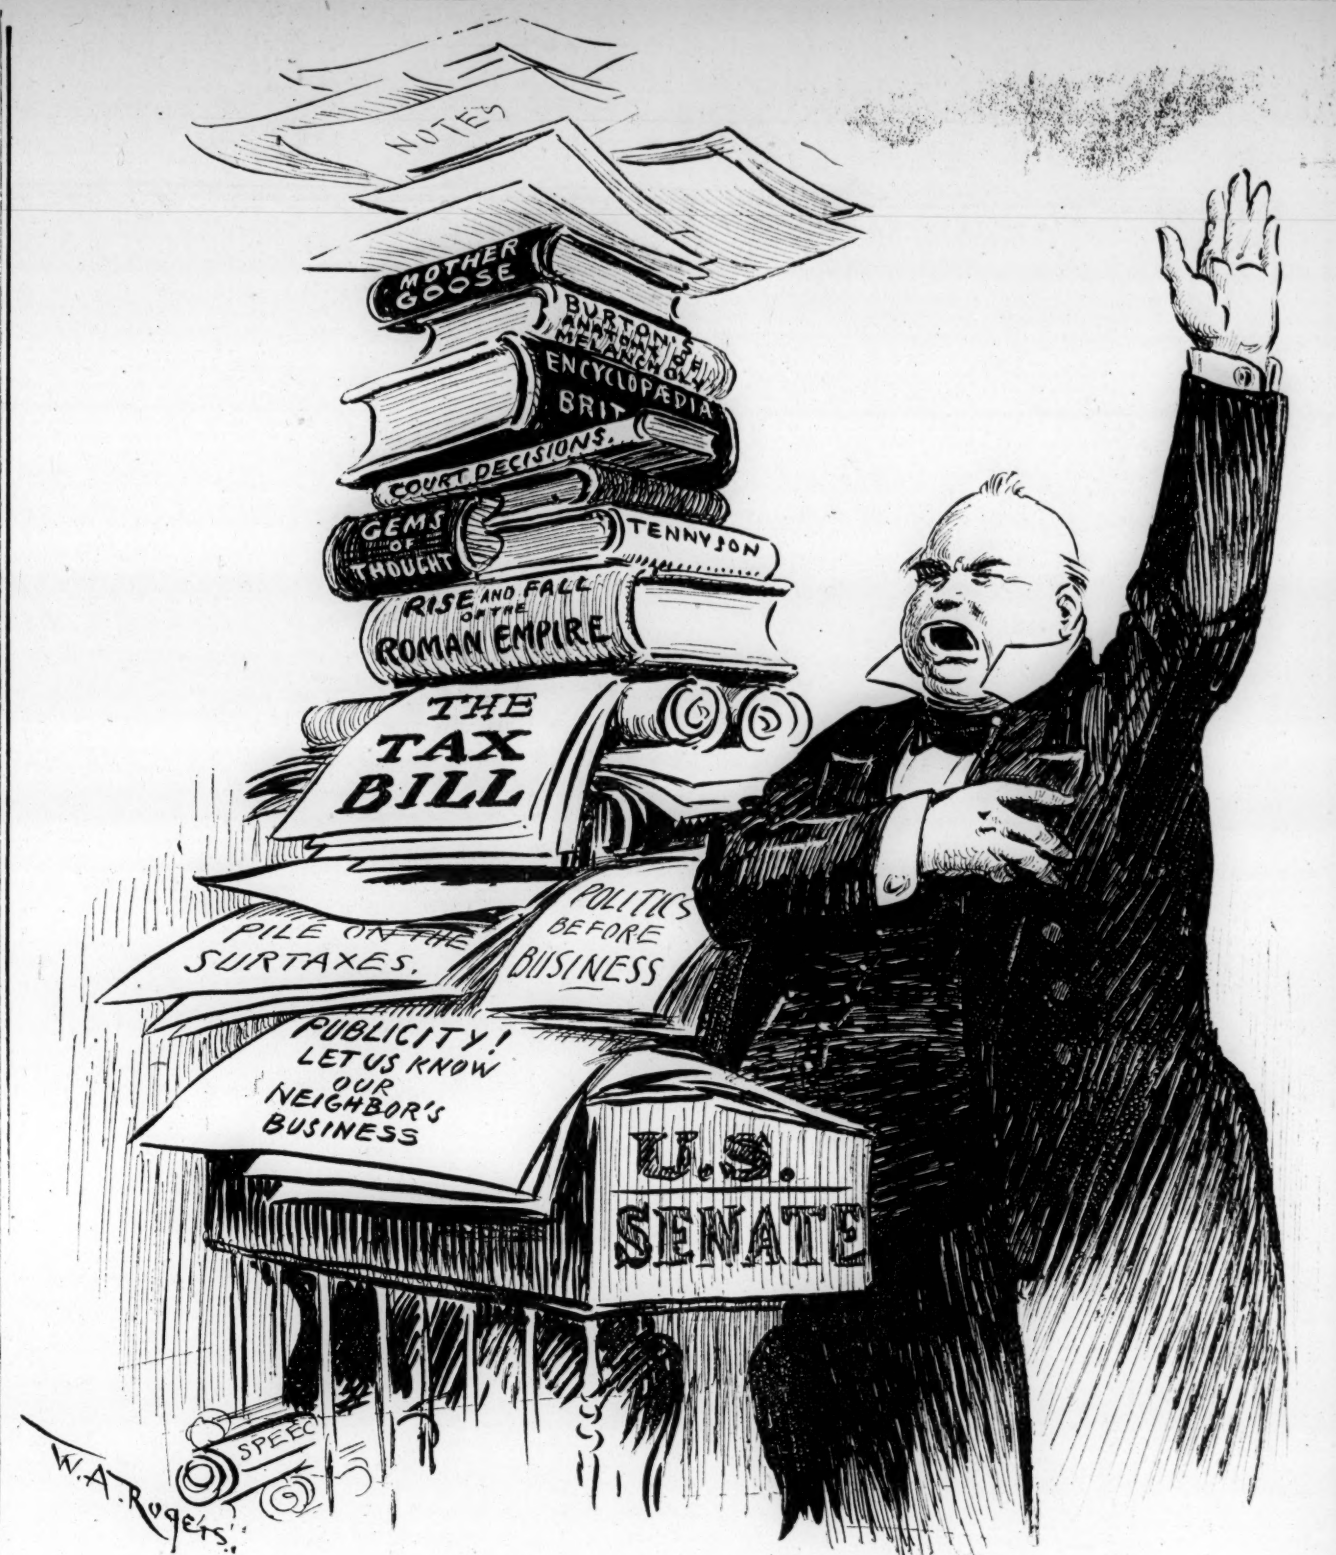

The Worst Joke I heard today was told to me by Stanley Anderson, of Beverly Hills. Stanley is the Genial Proprietor of the Beverly Hills Hotel, one of the famous Hosteleries of the entire West. You can have your private cottages with meals sent into them or with all servants furnished privately for you and get away from the ordinary run of Hotel life. It's very quiet, and a dignified Hotel. I live a half block from it and have never yet been aroused in the night by the carousals and usual annoyances that come from most Hotels. Still I am a pretty sound sleeper. Stanley has gotten rich in Beverly Hills Real Estate. He is one man that don't think Florida will eventually annex us for a Garage.

The other night, after a raid, my Stanley told me a story.

He has two little boys, and one Jack came from school and was telling about what had happened that day in the class. The Teacher was explaining the different Ages. She said there used to be a Stone Age, a Bronze age, an Iron Age, and all the others, and then asked, "What age are we living in now?" One little transplanted Iowa Cornplanter piped out, "The Hard-Bolled Age."

PRESS COMMENT

Smith and the G. O. P.

Rocky Mountain News: Gov. Smith, of New York, has reached the acme of his ambition for the present—the opposition is doing what he desires in order to make this his last term at Albany.

Satan in Sunday Trains.

Minneapolis Journal: A Tennessee blue law advocate, visiting New York, says Satan rides on all the Sunday trains that operate in that city. The old gentleman must have done a powerful lot of riding.

Thrill Week in Laugh Month.

Los Angeles Times: This is Thrill week in Laugh month. Some of these guys who used to spend their time on crossword puzzles might be able to put this together, but outside of Scotland the two are hard to match.

The First Dialogue.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: A preacher over in Holland must face a charge of heresy for his version of the conversation between Eve and the serpent concerning the apple, as related in Genesis. He doubts that the serpent did any talking. He believes the alleged dialogue was a monologue, with the serpent doing the listening. The learned divine may not know his Bible, but he sure knows his Eve.

Static.

Louisville Courier-Journal: A Cleveland enthusiast on the subject of Esperanto recently radioed an address in this so-called universal language over the radio. But the universal language of radio continues to be static.

The Army-Navy Game.

Brooklyn Eagle: Chicago profiteers chuckle as New York profiteers, theater men, hotel men, restaurant men are rebuked by the decision to hold the next Army-Navy football game in the Western town. We suppose West Pointers and Annapolis men couldn't get where they couldn't be robbed anywhere this side of Zambounga.

An Easy Life.

Brooklyn Eagle: A bankrupt army officer in London, asked how he had lived for several years, explained that he got along on an average of $5,000 a year won at bridge in his clubs. If this Maj. Crawley had had a Becky Sharp to help him live genteelly on nothing a year he would have been a delight to some budding Thackeray of the twentieth century.

A Wall From Oldfield.

New York World: Representative Oldfield, who is Democratic whip in the House of Representatives, declares that the House is more automatically managed, more completely machined-controlled than it has ever been in its history. By comparison with the present state of affairs he thinks that Cannonism was "pure, unadulterated democracy."

Cervantes.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Superlatives are dangerous; but it is within the bounds of reason to regard the author of "Don Quixote" as the greatest man of letters Spain has produced in genius, has produced.

Home-Made Opinions

By GLENN FRANK.

THE drift of our generation is to machine-made opinions. Our actions are dictated by custom.

Our thoughts are dictated by creed. Custom and creed furnish, of course, an indispensable preservative element to society; they are containers in which the achievements of the human spirit are carried over from one generation to the next.

But custom and creed are agencies of peril as well as of preservation; unfortunately at times they preserve the bad as well as the good; and from them the obsolete and the vicious acquire a sanction in a generation that really knows better.

I attempt no indictment either of custom or creed; I merely call attention to their corruption.

And it is a truism that the corruption of the best is the worst corruption.

It is a part of the art of effective living to develop the power of discriminating between the good and the bad that has been preserved in customs and in creeds.

Only so can we retain the captaincy of our own consciences, and become persons instead of puppets.

"Nothing is more rare in any man," said Emerson, "than an act of his own."

Translating this into his own vivid prose, Oscar Wilde said:

"Most people are other people. Their thoughts are some one else's opinions; Their lives a mimicry; Their passions a quotation."

The subtle danger that is hidden in custom and creed is that they lead us to believe that truth is determined by sanctions and standards outside of what truth does in us and to us and for us.

They too often lead us to regard truth as something to be believed rather than as something to be used and lived and loved.

More and more we are coming to see that it does little good to believe truths that we do not or can not use.

In fact, the great virtues and vitalities of life are not best approached by asking whether they are true or false, but by asking what they mean to life.

We do not ask regarding an exquisite flower whether it is true or false; we sense its perfume and enjoy it.

We do not ask regarding food whether it is true or false; we taste it and profit by its nutritive values.

So in the deeper matters of mind and morals; the test of truth is life.

"There is no blackboard demonstration that God is good," says Charles Ferguson. "You must risk it or die a coward."

The great sanction of truth is the sanction that one intelligent and fruitful act gives to the next.

Opinions made out of the stuffs of our own courageous contacts with life and its enveloping mysteries are the opinions that make us men.

(Copyright, 1926)

The action of the Spanish government in making the birthday of Cervantes a national holiday pays him a richly deserved honor. The anniversary is appropriately to be made the occasion of a yearly award of prizes in literature.

Though an American, George Ticknor, wrote one of the best histories of Spanish literature. Americans, as a rule, know less of it than they should. "Don Quixote" is too seldom read, and Lope de Vega and Calderon are little more than names even to many cultivated people. Our increasingly intimate relations with the Spanish-speaking countries should give the literature of Spain a fresh interest in our eyes.

Conditions in Mexico.

New York Telegram: Observant Mexicans are expressing concern over the drift of international affairs and the imminence of a crisis in the relations between their country and that of the United States. Undoubtedly conditions in Mexico are not satisfactory, and, at the same time, the present Washington government will be loath to enter into controversy over minor infractions of international amity and decency, so the situation may stew on for a considerable while. But what extremists in Mexico must not be allowed to overlook is the fact that reluctance to take definite measures now is not based upon the same theories that governed the policies of a decade ago.

An Eternal Voice.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: Mme. Nellie Melba, closing her published reminiscences of kings and scholars, of operas and concerts, turns to reflection on the total of it all. She tells how the great Jean de Reszke died singing at Monte Carlo and how his voice, broken with age the last twenty years, returned to him splendid and young when he lay near death.

"It is how I should like, when my time comes, to die myself," she writes. "For it makes me wonder if the gift which one has always regarded as transient, like the passing of summer or the fading of the rose, may not, after all, have eternal being."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Eminent Domain.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In this morning's Post, on "Coal Legislation Needed," in the closing paragraph, you say: "The situation calls for action by Congress. The failure of Congress to assert control over the coal situation is inexcusable." But no suggestion is made as to what action Congress should take.

In the New York Times of the 20th instant it is reported that the President said: "At present the Federal government has no power to do anything effectively," etc.

Coal in the ground before being mined is interstate commerce (Pennsylvania vs. West Virginia, 252 U. S. 557).

I have the honor to inclose to you a copy of a bill which, if enacted into law by Congress, would confer upon the President power to take effective action in the premises.

"The United States shall have power to exercise the right of eminent domain to regulate, maintain and protect the mails of the United States; and also the commerce between the States, with foreign countries and the Indian tribes and to take and appropriate for its use all such property, real, personal and mixed, as may be, for the time being, necessary and proper for the purpose. Provided, however, that in all cases, an action at law, with a trial by jury, shall be commenced and diligently prosecuted, as soon as possible, after such taking, or proposed taking, in the name of the United States against the owner or owners thereof, in the district court of the United States where such property or a material part thereof, lies, is situated or located, for the purpose of ascertaining the quantity and quality thereof, and a just compensation therefor; which action shall proceed with due process according to law; and upon a judgment being finally rendered therefor the United States shall pay to the owner or owners of the property so taken the amount thereof with interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum, and the legal cost of the proceedings."

GEORGE W. JULY.

Washington, Jan. 28.

Detraction of Washington.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I think it an injustice not only to school children but all the people of America to tear the character of our first President to pieces. Naturally, however, he was not a superman and, of course, he, like all human beings, has, of course, participated in all the sports and other diversions which were in vogue in his time, but it still stands to reason he could have been an honest and upright citizen, and it would certainly be advantageous for some of the present generation to imitate him in many ways.

It is lovely for the children to continue in their patriotic faith in "The Father of Our Country."

It has kept a good many children from telling a "lie," by trying to be more like George Washington.

My children were horrified and shocked when they read what Mr. Hughes did not know what he was talking about, because George Washington never told a lie and was a great general."

Confederate Veteran, 85, Cheered in House

(By Associated Press.)

Maj. Charles M. Steadman, who won his title while serving with Lee's army of Northern Virginia, and for years has represented a North Carolina district in Congress, received a remarkable tribute from the House yesterday on his eighty-fifth birthday.

When he asked permission to deliver an address to the House on February 6, Speaker Longworth refused to put the motion to a vote, declaring that the permission was granted by unanimous consent.

Then, on motion of the Republican leader, Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the House adjourned while its members rushed to congratulate the veteran, who is the only civil war soldier remaining in the House. Laudatory speeches by representatives of every section followed.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.
Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.
Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.

WALL STREET GOSSIP

New York, Jan. 29 (By A. P.).—Daniel Upthegrove, president of the St. Louis—Southwestern railway, says traffic conditions in the Southwest are steadier than last winter and earnings probably will follow the same course, with January net operating income equal to a year ago. Abnormal conditions which existed last year did not now prevail, he said, and there was every reason to expect as good, if not better year in 1926, than the year just closed.

Directors of Nash Motors have formally approved the 900 per cent common stock dividend recently authorized and certificates for nine shares of new common for each share held will be mailed February 19 to the holders of record February 11.

Devoe & Reynolds Co. reports net profit of $698,018 for the year ended November 30, 1925, equal after preferred dividends to $3.69 a share on the combined A and B no par value common stocks. The previous report ended the eleven months ended November 30, 1924, showing net profit of $797,313, or $16.10 a share on the $100 par common.

Private dispatches received in Wall street from Baltimore state that the Georgia-Alabama Power Co. has been sold to the South Georgia Power Co., subsidiary of the Columbus Electric & Power Co., for approximately $5,000,000 in cash and securities. Proceeds of

New business booked by the International Combustion Engineering Corporation in 1925 exceeded $18,000,000, an increase of 100 per cent over 1924, George E. Learnard, president, said today on the eve of his departure for Europe to inspect the company's business overseas. The increase in America alone, he said, was between 60 and 70 per cent.

$16.30 a share on its $120,000,000 common stock in 1925, against $12.30 a share in 1924. Surplus after charges and preferred dividends advanced to $19,579,172

Prices of scrap material have declined 25 cents a ton in the Pittsburgh district, quotations on heavy melting steel now ranging between $18 and $18.50 a ton. More than 5,000 tons recently was sold at $18.

Members of the New York Cotton Exchange are circulating a petition asking the managers to set a date for voting on a proposal to close the exchange either on Sat-

S. H. Kress & Co. earned $32.92 a share on the common stock in 1925 after preferred dividends, with net profit of $4,158,521, in contrast to $24.45 a share in 1924, and net profit of $3,143,934.

Purchases of cars by the railroads thus far in January, have been heavy and are expected to total about 10,000 cars, which would surpass the average for that month in the last five years. Close to 100,000 tons of steel are involved in orders placed this month, more than 60,000 tons of which Heaviest selling in the wheat market today developed during the final half hour and after prices had rallied 3 3/4¢ a bushel from an early low level. The rally was based more or less on the fact that world export sales this week are predicted to Purchases this week are predicted to be the largest in some time, about 6,000,000 bushels. Besides, word was at hand that import duties into Czechoslovakia will be removed February 1. Liberal shipments from August 1945 of 10,000,000 bushels estimated.

TREADWAY OFFERS BILL TO REGULATE LOCAL COAL TRADE

Declares Senate Inquiry Has Disclosed Profiteering in District.

PROPOSES TO LICENSE DEALERS, OPEN BOOKS

W. W. Griffith to Testify
Again as Hearing Is Resumed Today.

Asserting that the Senate District committee had disclosed profiteering by local coal dealers, Representative Treadway, of Massachusetts, yesterday introduced a bill providing for the regulation of coal sales here.

"The investigation that has been conducted by the Senate District of Columbia committee has established the fact," said Mr. Treadway, "that there has been profiteering in the District," adding that a similar investigation would establish the same fact "throughout the coal consuming sections of the country."

Under the terms of Mr. Treadway's bill a bureau of fuel administration would be established here under the supervision of the District commissioners. They would appoint a chief of the bureau who would be empowered to make suitable rules and regulations. The matter of his salary is left for further consideration of the bill.

Power to Revoke Licenses.

All coal dealers would be licensed upon the condition that their books be accessible to the regulating bureau, the name of the dealer to be kept confidential in making the figures public. Publicity would be the bureau's greatest weapon and it would have power to revoke a license of any dealer found guilty of profiteering.

Any dealer operating without a license would be liable to a fine not exceeding $500 for the first offense and a maximum fine of $1,000 and six months' imprisonment for the second offense.

W. W. Griffith, local coal dealer, who has borne the burden of the Senate committee's examination thus far, is to take the stand again this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock when the hearing is resumed.

Further Figures Promised.

Mr. Griffith has promised Senator Neely, of West Virginia, to produce further figures on his statement that in a turnover of more than $300,000 he made only 2 cents on the dollar.

As the inquiry has shaped up so far the dealers admit a spread of approximately $5 in the coal from the time it arrives at the railway dump until it is delivered to the consumer. They contend that all but $2.73 of it is absorbed in degradation. The committee plans today to question as to why virtually the same spread prevails for run-of-mine coal for which, from its very nature, there can be no degradation. The $5 spread is based on the highest prices they have paid for coal at the mines.

The committee has a stack of letters on hand dealing with individual grievances which it has not yet had time to study. It has several surprise witnesses yet to be heard.

They are expected here about February 3.

POLICE HELD HSIE KILLED 2 CHINESE, WAN COUNSEL SAYS

Believed at First Slaying Ended With Suicide, Lambert Tells Court.

PERMISSION IS SOUGHT TO INTRODUCE EVIDENCE

Burlingame and Kelly, Who Arrested Accused, to Go on Stand Monday.

Did one of the Chinese in what is known as the "triple murder" kill his two colleagues and then commit suicide?

The police once entertained that theory, according to counsel for Ziang Sun Wan, who is now on trial in connection with the crime.

Provided the court will give its permission, Wilton J. Lambert, chief counsel for Wan, will call witnesses who, he says, will testify that the police originally believed it was a case of murder and suicide.

Hsie Once Thought Slaying.

The police theory, according to the defense counsel, was that Dr. T. T. Wong and Ben Sen Wu, director and secretary of the Chinese education mission in Kalorama road, were slain by C. H. Hsie, who, in turn, killed himself.

Dr. Wong and Wu were found with two bullet wounds each. Hsie had only one wound.

The trial of Wan, which is now at the half-way stage, will be continued Monday morning in criminal court. Wan is charged with killing Ben Sen Wu.

Detectives to Take Stand.

Capt. Guy E. Burlingame, who, with Headquarters Detective Edward Kelly, arrested Wan in New York the day after the murder was discovered, will be on the witness stand Monday morning.

United States Attorney Peyton Gordon, who leads the prosecution, has announced that the list of government witnesses is nearly exhausted and that the defense soon will have its turn.

Woman Who Wielded Water Gun Released

Mrs. Hattie Morris, 627 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, who was charged with an assault on Ralph L. Melman, a bill collector, was released yesterday by Judge Schuller in police court when it was discovered that she did nothing more than to point a squirt gun at him.

It appears that Melman thought that he looked down the barrel of a real weapon. He fled from the place and the arrest of Mrs. Morris followed. The court gave her back the "weapon," which was still loaded with water.

They include a Charleston by the Shaffer sisters, waltz interpretations by Helen Jane Marr, a Spanish tango by Jerry Ripp and Ruth Marionelli, and vocal selections by Betty Thornberry and the Imperial trio of Baltimore.

Committee Approves Howard U. Measure

The bill to incorporate Howard university was reported favorably yesterday by the House education committee. A similar measure has been before the past two sessions. The main effect of the bill would be to give the university a standing in substantive law. There is no legislative authority for it now and as a result provision for it in the appropriations bill is stricken out in the House annually on a point of order, only to be reinserted later by the Senate.
